

This language has been spoken for thousands of years.

This language is only spoken (or oral).

This language is used to tell stories.

Many of the best-known books were written or translated into this language.

This language is often taught to children using music.

This language's alphabet song is based on written letters.

People who speak this language use pictures to record stories instead of writing down words.

This language is not a written language but can be transcribed. Transcribed means to take the sounds one hears and use letters to represent those sounds.

This language is spoken by people who live in Utah.

This language's alphabet song is not based on letters, but instead focuses on the basic sounds that make up the language.

You see and use this language every day.

There are not very many people who speak this language today.

This language is both written and spoken (oral).

This language is used to communicate ideas.

This language is the most spoken language in the world.