COURSE DESCRIPTION AND GOALS
This course provides an overview of theoretical concepts and practical issues related to group counseling. The course covers counselor issues, client selection criteria, client and group preparation, group structuring, group processes, evidence-based group practice, multicultural competence, and basic therapeutic techniques. Students will acquire basic skills in leading group counseling sessions and dealing with difficult situations through experiential exercises. The purpose is to introduce students to concepts of group dynamics and development as well as the practical aspects of leading a group. Discussion of structured and unstructured groups as well as group settings and purposes will be included.

COURSE OBJECTIVES
1. To learn major concepts in contemporary theory and practice of group counseling.
2. To develop a rationale for different group structures and processes.
3. To experience practical group skills by forming, conducting, and ending a mock counseling group.
4. To learn and be able to utilize basic evidence-based practice/practice-based evidence concepts in group counseling

COURSE REQUIREMENTS & GRADING

A variety of methods will be used to approach the course objectives. These include lectures, discussions, video presentations, in-class role-plays, project presentations, participation in a weekly mock group during class, readings, and handouts.

ATTENDANCE / PARTICIPATION: Students may receive up to 50 points for perfect attendance and regular participation. Much of the interactional and experiential learning for this course will take place during class activities; therefore, ten (10) points will be deducted from the attendance/participation portion of the grade for each absence, regardless of the reason. Lack of participation in class discussions may also result in a deduction of five (5) points for each class discussion or activity not engaged in. One (1) point will also be deducted for each time a student is late. Students are responsible for any announcements made during missed classes.

READING: Students will read all chapters from the textbook and possibly other supplemental readings. Access to supplemental readings will be provided by the course instructor. Students are responsible to read the material before coming to class. Reading logs will be due every two weeks. The readings are worth up to 40 points.

PROPOSAL FOR DIVERSITY- OR AGE-RELATED OR SPECIALIZED GROUPS: Assigned groups of students will generate a group proposal for a diverse/age-related (i.e., multi-cultural, children, adolescents, adults, and elderly) or specialized (i.e. trauma stress, disabled persons, anger management, military personnel, divorce support, etc.) population. Students should follow the guidelines found in the Corey text—specifically the bulleted points on pages 148-149. Students can also refer to the group proposals on pages 335-351, and those contained in Chapter 11 for inspiration. Group proposals can be for a variety of target populations and can be a combination of the types of groups listed above. Students can work in groups of two or individually. The purpose of this assignment is to give you the opportunity to practice creating a proposal for a group you think you might be likely to lead in the future. Proposals will be turned in to be graded, but will also be shared among class members. The proposal is worth up to 30 points.

MOCK GROUP LEARNING EXPERIENCE: Each student will participate in a series of role played or mock groups led by class members (on a rotating basis) or by the instructors. By the second class period each student will write a one to two page description of their character (including background/history, presenting problem, issues that may unfold later in the group, typical interaction style, etc.) and create a genogram detailing family relationships for their character. Members will participate according to chosen roles (Sample role descriptions will be provided). Students are encouraged to “step into” their roles through a variety of out-of-session activities (e.g., keep a journal, detailing a day from the point-of-view of the chosen character). Students will sign up to act as a group leader at least twice during the semester. When not acting as a group leader, students will be group participant (with assigned role) each class period during these experiential mock groups. These groups will be conducted during class time during nearly every class period.

Experiential simulations are intended to illustrate group phenomena and will not function as group therapy. Participation will be voluntary and by informed consent. We will do our best to maintain a safe environment, free from pressure for self-disclosure. The purpose is not to provoke anxiety or intrude upon the personal lives of the students, but rather to stimulate curiosity and awareness of how groups work.
Experiential Interventions: Students will be asked to find and utilize, jointly as co-leaders, an experiential activity/intervention (e.g., ice breaker, process development activity, psychodrama) designed for group therapy during at least one of the sessions they lead the mock group.

Group Notes: Class members will be asked to write a group note for each experiential group session. The note should be reflective of major group themes, conflicts, or process interactions that occurred during the session, and it may also provide a conceptualization of group needs and progress. The notes may be written according to the individual style of the students and do not need to reflect the instructor’s particular theoretical orientation. In addition, students will also be asked to write a brief note (3-4 lines) about one group member’s work during the session as well as a brief conceptualization on this member. Students are encouraged to write the adjunctive note about a different group member each week. Example notes will be provided by the instructors. These notes, in conjunction with participation in the mock group experience and the experiential intervention, are worth up to 50 points.

If a student elects not to participate in the above mock group experience, s/he may choose to participate in one of the two alternatives below, without penalty:

Alternative 1: Class members can choose to be in a group at the Counseling and Psychological Services (CAPS) or BYU Comprehensive Clinic (CPSE doctoral students may not participate in a CAPS group.). In order to avoid disruption of these ongoing groups, if a class member chooses this option, s/he will be required to attend the group for the entire semester or term. Those wishing to engage in such groups need to do so as a participant, not as an observer. Your instructors will help make this arrangement if a student so desires. Everyone choosing this alternative will be encouraged to write a reflection of their own group experience at the end of the term (note: it is critical to protect the privacy of other group members in this paper). These reflections will be confidential and not graded. This is worth up to 50 points, based on qualitative evaluation of content. Five (5) points will be deducted for each session missed.

Alternative 2: Class members can choose to write a 25-page academic paper on group counseling or therapy. This option will be available for any student who does not want to participate in either of the two group options above. The topic is to be mutually agreed upon by the student and instructor. This is worth up to 50 points, based on qualitative evaluation of content and technical presentation such as format, spelling, grammar, etc.

Theoretical Orientation Presentation: Students will study a theoretical approach to group therapy in depth and give a presentation to the rest of the class. Presentations should cover the premises, practices, role of the group leader, desired outcomes, and evaluation of the theoretical approaches they are assigned to study. Please create a one-page handout that summarizes your presentation (email this to the instructors). The project is worth up to 30 points.
