Objectives:

The objective of this course is to provide an integrated theoretical model of human development across the lifespan that is applicable to both Ed.S. School Psychologists and Ph.D. Counseling Psychologists. An integrated model is chosen over multiple models parsed by psychological domain (e.g., cognitive, moral, physical, social). We will integrate theory, research and case studies.

Specifically, students will be able to:

a) Articulate the fundamental assumptions of developmental psychology.
b) Differentiate developmental psychology from other models.
c) Articulate the process of human development across the human life span.
d) Articulate the characteristics of each progressive balance in human development.
e) Identify processes and characteristics in extended case studies.
f) Apply developmental psychology to specific problems in the human condition.

Grading:

You will be graded on your performance on: a) midterm examination, b) X group case studies, c) individual final paper, and d) final examination.

We will ask you to form small working groups (3-4 members) to analyze extended case studies and write a group paper for each one.

Final Paper:

Option 1: Complete a subject/object interview and write up your findings

Option 2: Complete an additional case study based on either a book or a movie and write an integrated assessment.

Option 3: Application of Kegan’s model to any issue in human behavior (e.g., addiction, depression, etc…)

Option 4: Write an integrated review of the most current literature focusing on any specific topic in developmental psychology. (e.g., Association of X on children’s development. X may equal: trauma, education, nurturance, divorce, affluence, poverty, illness, athletics, siblings, sibling with a disability, frequent moves, parental alcoholism, pre-natal conditions…) Please obtain approval for your paper from the instructors before beginning.

Final Exam:

During the Final Exam time, in your small group be prepared to apply Kegan’s model to your own development process. Using feedback and discussion from your group, write a paper that applies Kegan to you. – OR – Final interview with the instructors to apply Kegan to yourself.

Honor Code Standards:

In keeping with the principles of the BYU Honor Code, students are expected to be honest in all of their academic work. Academic honesty means, most fundamentally, that any work you present as your own must in fact be your own work and not that of another. Violations of this principle may result in a failing grade in the course and additional disciplinary action by the university.

Students are also expected to adhere to the Dress and Grooming Standards. Adherence demonstrates respect for yourself and others and ensures an effective learning and working environment. It is the university’s expectation, and my own expectation in class, that each student will abide by all Honor Code standards. Please call the Honor Code Office at 422-2847 if you have questions about those standards.

Preventing Sexual Discrimination or Harassment:

Sexual discrimination or harassment (including student-to-student harassment) is prohibited both by the law and by Brigham Young University policy. If you feel you are being subjected to sexual discrimination or harassment, please bring your concerns to me. Alternatively, you may lodge a complaint with the Equal Employment Office (D-240C ASB) or with the Honor Code Office (4440).

Students with Disabilities:
If you have a disability that may affect your performance in this course, you should get in touch with the University Accessibility Center (2170 WSC). This office can evaluate your disability and assist me in arranging for reasonable accommodations.
