

BYU | McKay School

Alumni Society

Mentoring our Students

On February 22, we will be hosting our annual Dinner with a Principal event. This is an opportunity for upperclassmen to meet and spend time with local education professionals to ask questions and receive guidance for their careers in education.

Your Advice

Mentoring our students is an important part of what we do here at the McKay School, and we need your wisdom. Please send your response to “What advice would you give to recent graduates?” to mckayalumni@byu.edu.

Spotlights

Education in Everything

LaRae Harris Wilson graduated from the McKay School in 1981 with her degree in education, which has provided her many different career opportunities.

Stories of Interest

Teaching through Text Messages

Most BYU students celebrate the Fourth of July with fireworks and parades, but IP&T master's student Cade Dopp spent his July in Ghana with junior high students and cell phones.

Arts in Schools

At the McKay School's Learning Edge Conference, Lois Hetland, an affiliate of Project Zero at the Harvard Graduate School of Education, addressed a crowd of school leaders and administrators about the importance of arts education across disciplines.

The Literacy Promise Conference

It's not too late to register for The Literacy Promise Conference, which will be held March 28–30 at the Salt Lake Marriott Downtown at City Creek hotel. Sessions will be presented by nationally recognized experts in the field of literacy. Featured author this year is James Dashner, author of the Maze Runner series. For more information and registration, go to education.byu.edu/cites.

